Father Ryan Arts Center: FREE African Arts Workshop
African-American Dance: Saturday, May 22; 10 am – 12 pm (youth)

In this one-day workshop, students will explore the connection between traditional African dance and urban styles of today. Students will then learn traditional and hip-hop dance steps to use in the development of their own choreography. The instructor will demonstrate a variety of African dance styles to guide students through a series of creative exercises designed to reinforce motor coordination, increase non-verbal communication capacity, and expand listening skills.

Instructor: Staycee Pearl is a choreographer/dancer and visual artist who creates movement for many local and regional theater and dance companies. She also holds a Studio Arts degree from the University of Pittsburgh.
